

FAASTeam presents:

Single Pilot Resource Management - An overlooked resource

Single Pilot Resource Management is one of the greatest tools that we as pilots can utilize to make us safer pilots. Data shows that pilots who utilize this skill set in their flying catch their mistakes quicker which in turn makes them a safer pilot. This seminar will briefly cover all aspects of CRM/SRM from its history to why we all must utilize this skill set. Whether you're flying a Cessna 152 or a Boeing 747 being proficient at SRM combined with good aeronautical decision making (ADM) is the key to making sure your going to have a successful flight.

This seminar will unpack how we can maximize the resources around you and introduce some ways you can build habits to sharpen your SRM. SRM begins before we get into the plane and it ends after some reflection about the flight when you chalk the tires. We will cover many scenarios that may come up on a given flight and how we address each one of them. Mistakes will happen as there is no perfect flight, the key with SRM is developing tools for your "Flight Bag" that can catch those mistakes before they manifest into something bigger that could hinder a safe flight. This course will be available both in-person and online! Once you register on the link below, you will receive Zoom information in your conformation email.
